Veterans Post

Resolutions for 2014

by Freddy Groves

With the New Year coming soon, we have an opportunity to make some resolutions for changes in 2014. Even if we don't typically make resolutions, there are some that are worthwhile to consider. Here are a few:

--Is your paperwork in order? If you have an ongoing claim with the Department of Veterans Affairs, keep everything in a file, newest on top. Do you have a list of your personal information, including date of birth, list of places and dates you served (include names of personnel you remember from then to jog your memory later, if necessary), DD-214 or equivalent, marriage certificate, children's birth certificates and life-insurance policy?

If anything should happen to you, make it easier for your survivors: Have copies (print out online) of Application for United States Flag for Burial Purposes, Claim for One Sum Payment Government Life Insurance, Claim for Monthly Payments National Service Life Insurance and Application for Standard Government Headstone or Marker.

Gather all this information and keep it all in one place.

--If you're not a member of a veterans service group, like American Legion or Veterans of Foreign Wars, join up. If you are a member, step forward and participate. Consider projects that would help other veterans and propose them to the group. Be an example: Set up regular dates to volunteer at the closest VA medical center.

--Make a health goal and take small steps toward it on a regular basis.

--If you have a mental-health concern but haven't sought treatment, stop trying to deal with it by yourself. Whether you have depression, possible PTSD or suicidal thoughts, there is help. There's no stigma attached to looking for a fix. At the end of the day, it doesn't matter what others think or say. Your first responsibility is to yourself and being the best you can be.

Freddy Groves regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Send email to columnreply2@gmail.com.
