

Times Remembered Betty A. Young

BYoung505@Windstream.Net

I am doing much better this week. I missed writing my article last week due to surgery, but I'm slowly getting my strength back.

There is just too much going on to stay inside. The summer landscape is slowly becoming clothed in autumn splendor. Trees sacrifice their summer decor, redecorating the ground with with gold, crimson, and orange leaves. Intense rays of yellow sunlight begin to soften and glow with a warm hue, bringing a sense of serenity as we anticipate shorter days ahead.

Too Much Going On To Stay Inside

I am replacing summer curtains, pillows and rugs for bright colors to maintain that cozy atmosphere indoors when the air gets chilly outside.

I like using fall colors when decorating; I had a great time decorating before my surgery. I used leaves and gourds to make flower arrangements, and straw and fodder for outdoor decorating.

It's time to gather up nubby gourds, string up a few strands of bittersweet and bring in plump pumpkins because all signs indicate that the crisp and comforting feeling of fall is in the air.

The only place I have been this past week is to ride with my sisters out to Crooked Creek to get more fall vegetables. We bought sweet potatoes from Mr. Coffey. He always has a bumper crop, and they are really good. Now, I'm looking for greens to put in the freezer.

It is always good to drive out to Crooked Creek; I suppose, because that is where my parents grew up, and I spent a lot of time there with my grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins.

As we passed along the upper end of Crooked Creek, we went by where my mom grew up. Her dad sold the farm in the early '40's, I believe, and moved to town. It is the most beautiful place; it is a two-story, white house that sets back off the road with a long drive through a beautiful green field with a creek that runs alongside of it. It is so green it reminds you of Ireland.

I could imagine seeing young people in the yard playing games, (maybe post office), having apple peelings, bean hullings, and candy pullings; then, when everything was finished, they had dances. There were always people who played music for parties and dances in the community. I remember mom saying that her Uncle June Warford played the fiddle for many a dance. I remember him as a child; but he was getting up in age then.

Pastor Merle Travis

The endless questions of growing children often become boring and frustrating. There are times when no answer will do and no explanation is ever sufficient. The child persists, refuses to be satisfied with our best answers and the questions never stop.

Perhaps David had times in his life, as we all do, when it seemed as though his "King" would not answer his questions. It seemed as though the Lord stood far beyond and above him, unavailable and unable to answer his questions. So, what did David do? He thought that he understood Him, did what he knew He expected of him to the best of his ability. Yet we see him standing there in wonder

- wanting and waiting to hear a voice and unable to bear the silence.

What was his problem? And do we have this same problem today? Perhaps.

Instant gratification and sudden success do not breed faith in God. But patient expectation and utter dependence on Him does. Perhaps our "fast-food-lanes" and "any-time-bank-tellers" have eroded the importance of waiting and watching and wondering. Deep within us we believe that He will answer our prayers and meet our needs. We know that His power is beyond our imagination. David realized this, too.

David had an intimate knowledge of God and knew Him personally. Yet, he asked the who question twice as though His power was not available. But it was! God wanted David to wait and trust and grow.

A Word of Warning

by BOB CASEY, Preacher
Church of Christ, 262 Broadway, Irvine, KY

A foreword: Many of you are reading this column weekly and for this we are well pleased. However, it would encourage to all who have a part in its production, especially the owners and editors of this paper if you would make mention of your appreciation of the work they do. All of us writers sure do. Thanks again, B.C.

Our lesson today is dealing with the realities of life, and of things that are certain and will not be changed. In the Old Testament Ezekial the prophet said, chapters 33:7-9: "that God has set the Holy men of Israel as watchmen over the nation. He said to speak words of warning unto them to turn from their sins. Saying if you don't warn them and hey die in their sins, I will require your blood. But if they would cry out the warning and did not turn from his sins, they would be delivered from the blame them of their sins."

I personally do not want any one's blood on my hands at the judgment. This is why I preach a warning to us all. Prepare to meet our Lord.

In Ecclesiastes 3:1-8 Solomon wrote concerning all the events of mankind saying in verse 2, "There is a time to be born." Now we all know that we had nothing to do regarding our births, neither our colors or nationalities. Yet in due time out we came into this world kicking away, crying and taking our place upon their earth. But in the same sentence Solomon added, "A time to die." Sometimes little babies never proceed to take hold of life because they died in infancy as did our first daughter. But these are rare exceptions. Most live to experience some time in life's journeys. But during these two events we will have a time to consider what life is really all about. We will have time to hear about the love of God, about the sending of His son, and we will know about His reasons for His coming. This of course is to redeem and save sinful men. So then if we live to an age where we are accountable to God for our sins, then he offers to all a plan to save all who will obey Him. This plan has not and will not change until Jesus returns to judgment.

This is a fixed thing with our Lord. Revelations 1:5-8 declares it. Then there are two other things that are fixed and prepared for men. First, a place in the heavenly home for all who have, and will believe and obey our Saviour. Hebrews 5:8-9 and Revelation 21:1-7 reveals this wonderful promise. It is worth a weekly reading.

Then there is another place fixed and prepared for disobedient mankind, "A lake of fire and brimstone." Revelation 20:10-15 also reveals this terrible end for all who live life in a reckless manner, never heeding to Christ's warnings, never showing sorrow for having lived a life of sin, scoffed at the idea of eternal judgment, mocked at the idea of Christian service. Why would our Lord let anyone like this into His Heaven? These things are for certain and will not change.

But there is hope for all mankind who will open their minds and their hearts to make a decision to change their destinies from death unto eternal life. This opportunity will remain until our Lord descends from Heaven to establish His judgment. Remember! Only you with our Lord's forgiveness can change your destiny.

Let us help you make this decision soon!
Sincerely, Bob Casey 1-859-369-4165
