Just Hunting

Just Hunting

by Steve Brewer

Mimi and myself were "just sitting" on our back porch, listening to our rooster, "Big Joe" crowing. He is short on hens and is lonesome most of the time. We enjoy having our coffee on the porch every morning and enjoying country living, the way we remember, growing up in a small coal mining town in southeast Kentucky, a place called McRoberts.

We arrive early on our back porch, Usually drinking our first cup between 6:30 and 7:00. Early enough we don't catch much of the loud vehicles on the road in the front of our house, very few people it seems has a muffler these days. Oh well, I need to have my buddy Greenville Estes call me. He has a new phone, and I lost his number.

Now to why I write this hunting story, to talk hunting. I will be going on a safari hunt, trying to kill some meat for my freezer. With steaks at an all-time high, even if you can find them, I figured if I can connect with a thousand pound Watusi, Aoudad, Gemsbok or a wild longhorn, I will be money ahead, including getting there. At least I will be assured, if I score, that we will have meat on the table for the long haul. Besides all that, what can be more exciting than watching the sunrise and sunset being in the beautiful world God has given us to use.

I am not good at taking pictures when I am on these hunts, I usually forget that I need to take them to help tell the story, but I will try and do better, I promise. I hope to get there and back, without getting this virus. I assure myself, once in the open air, with just my guides and miles of open country in front of me, my chances of being alright, are in my favor.

Keep in mind, our Kentucky squirrel season opens back up on August 15th. We will be talking more about that after I return. Wish me luck.
