Jarred Vanderbilt

Larry Vaught

Kentucky is one of the schools pursuing 6-9 junior Jarred Vanderbilt, who is only 16 years old and ranked as one of the top 10 recruits in could go." the 2017 recruiting class.

"He's going to be really your track background? special at the next level," Vicney McCray, a former Louisville and NBA star, said.

Vanderbilt has already played at three venues in Kentucky this season and will be back again Feb. 6-7 to play games at Pulaski County in the Thoroughbred Classic that will also feature another of the nation's top juniors, 7-foot DeAndre Ayton of Arizona Hillcrest. He is also being pursued by Kentucky.

I caught up with Vanderbilt during Mustang Madness and he talked about a variety of things. Here's some of what he had to say leading into the games he'll play back in Kentucky Feb. 6-7. He'll go against Ayton, who had 52 points, 33 rebounds and 10 blocks, at 9 p.m. on Feb. 6 and then face Huntington Prep at that wanting to be an engi-1:30 p.m. Feb. 7.

Question: What has it been like to play in Lexington, Marshall County and now at profile for a top basketball rethe McCracken County Mustang Madness in Paducah?

fascinating. Every time I come here they welcome you with warm arms and always support you. It is a great pleasure to play in Kentucky.'

Question: Do you think a lot of the fans are hoping you will play your college basketball at Kentucky?

Vanderbilt: "All the time day shootarounds. they refer to it and coming to It is nice. It shows that they really want me here, and I like that. The fans are very passionate about basketball here."

about coach John Calipari that you like?

Vanderbilt: "I just like how he gets the best out of each player. They work hard and he is just a great coach. They work hard and he takes them to the next level. He transitions their game and it seems like in the short amount of time they are there that kids get better and mature."

Question: Does it fascinate you that he can bring in so many new players each year and yet continues to win big?

Vanderbilt: "Absolutely. Any time you can bring four or five new guys every year and still be at the top of the crop is just amazing.

Question: How do you stand in recruiting right now?

Vanderbilt: "I am still taking my time. I haven't cut the list down yet. Recruitment is still open for me. I will cut had a big impact on Jones. down near AAU ball maybe near Peach Jam."

Question: What was it like playing with UK signee De'Aaron Fox last summer?

Vanderbilt: "He is a great Twitter. player. He is a competitor and plays hard and just wants to win. He just has a great passion for the game and is a great all-around player. Away from basketball, he is a down just has a great personality. He is sociable and a nice guy to be around."

Question: Do you really have a 4.3 grade-point average with all the basketball activity you have?

I am a student-athlete, so academics always come first. That is just another goal that I want to be an engineer or getting a doctorate. I always take education seriously, even before basketball."

your mother is a teacher?

something to do with it. She kind of instilled that in me at an early age and I just stuck with it. Before I would go outside to hoop when I was young, I had to make sure I got my homework done. If I had trips or games, she was on me to finish my work before I

Question: What about

Vanderbilt: "I ran the tory Prep (Texas) coach Rod- 100 (-meter dash) and 200. I stopped doing it because basketball is year round and I don't really have time to do multiple sports. I could run pretty fast."

Question: Do you play a few musical instruments?

Vanderbilt: "I used to play percussion. I played drums, bells, xylophone and all that. My middle school was a magnet school, so they taught us how to play instruments and do all that arts and stuff. I was in the marching band. Playing percussion in the band helped your coordination and all that stuff. All my activities I did when I was younger helped me and I utilize those skills now. I am glad I did do that at young age.'

Question: Do you realize neer, having over a 4.0 gradepoint average and a musical background is not that normal

Vanderbilt: "I do have Vanderbilt: "It has been people seem surprised because not the average basketball player has those attributes. It is unique."

Frustrating Season

Want to know how frustrating this season has been at times for Calipari? Well, he's having to teach during game-

"It wears you out. It tires Big Blue. I don't mind that. you out. Like you just can't stand there and watch. You have to - and you can't let them just play like the way they want to play. You have to stop them because if you let Ouestion: What is there them do what they want to do, you cannot win. You're not winning," Calipari said.

He says a shootaround can last 30 minutes if all goes well. Like just bang, bang, bang, they know it, we got it, you ready. 'Alright, let's go do this.' And we all know we're going to play great. Then I've had them before which are like 50-minute, 55minute shootaround, that I'm exhausted when I leave the court," Calipari said.

Recruit Mac Jones

Florida junior quarterback Mac Jones was UK's first commitment in the 2017 recruiting class and has impressed new quarterbacks coach Darrin Hinshaw since the coach got to UK from Cincinnati. However, three 2016 UK in-state commits — Drake Jackson, Kash Daniel and Landon Young — have all obviously

"I bought my first pair of boots today. I guess you can call me @The Drake 52, @ Landon Young or @Kash-Daniel," Jones posted on

To borrow a phrase from Calipari, that's called the Kentucky Effect.

Clueless Analyst

Every media member is to earth dude. He is cool. He entitled to his or her opinion. Even when I disagree, I respect another media member's opinion when I feel it is based on some type of logic and intelligence. Then there is ESPN so-called analyst Dan Dakich. He's anti-UK.

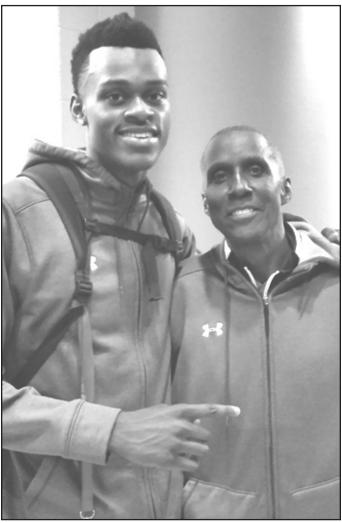

Always has been and always will be going back to his playing days at Indiana. He also tries to be a bully as I found Vanderbilt: "I make time out at the 2014 NCAA Tournafor it. It is mandatory for me. ment when he disagreed with something I said and try to be a macho man on press row.

But no way he can really believe what he said about Tyler Ulis is not even a top five point guard in the country and says no Kentucky fan even Question: Is that because believes that. Are you kidding me? He even got into a Twit-Vanderbilt: "That has ter battle with Kyle Tucker, beat writer for the Louisville Courier-Journal, about Ulis after the sophomore point guard had 21 points and five assists in Saturday's win over Vanderbilt. Either Dakich is clueless or just loves provoking UK fans. Myself, I think he's both and often wonder why ESPN puts up with him.

Thursday-Saturday

Kentucky is the only SEC team with two Thursday-Saturday turnarounds on its schedule this year but started out well by winning at Arkansas and then smacking Vanderbilt. Next UK will host Tennessee Feb. 18 before playing at Texas A&M on Feb. 20. Texas A&M leads the SEC and is considered the the league favorite.

college coach, will be back in Kentucky Feb. 6-7 for games at Pulaski County. Vanderbilt is a top 10 2017 recruit being pursued by Kentucky.

(Larry Vaught/Verizon Photo) point guards.

when you go home-to-away than when you go away-tohome," ESPN analyst Seth Greenberg said. "The players can get a good night's sleep and practice at home the next day before traveling to the second game sit. Sort of stay in your routine. But either way it is not easy."

Greenberg gave an honest assessment

"I don't like their chemistry, right now, and that makes it tough. Their shooters don't defend. Their defenders don't really make shots," Greenberg said.

credit, he reminded everyone "It's easier, in my opinion, how two years ago UK lost four of its final seven regularseason games and still made the national title game. "It's only January," Greenberg said. "We've seen (Calipari) flip the switch in February."

And to Greenberg's credit, after UK beat Arkansas and Vanderbilt in a 48-hour period he said we may have seen the start of that switch getting flipped.

Now comes a real chance for UK to show nationally that the switch has been flipped when it plays at Kansas this Saturday. ESPN GameDay will be there and why it is not He was right. But to his a must-win for UK, it could sure be a statement game for Calipari's Cats.

Jarred Vanderbilt and his father, Robert, a former Tyler Ulis has seven games where's he scored 20 or more points and over 100 assists this season, but ESPN analyst Dan Dakich continues to taunt UK fans by saying Ulis is not one of the nation's top five (Vicky Graff Photo)

Bob Watkins' Sports In Kentucky

Kentucky Wildcats starting to Get It; Next SI-worthy story? Could be Pitino's team

Bob Watkins

Eureka moments are part of most every basketball season. It's why we pay attention to witness when a 4 Wildcats host Missouri get it! becoming a team.

For fans, makes-my-day magical. A feel-good worth how well their team gets it! the time and ticket. A payback for devotion. Last week the Kentucky Wildcats showed signs of we get it! Evidence.

was like an old fashioned zero. table-spoon of caster oil up! Good for ya!"

2. Then, a pair of platinum performances – Arkansas and Vanderbilt. Caster Oil reaction? Fiercely effective defense. Playing at home the Hogs rushed, per cent and surrendered.

Rhetorical Ulis was five years old. Or, NCAA investigation). when Nolan Richardson of-hell, 2001.

dores had no chance against UK's inspired defense. They fired up 50 shots, made 16, er. A new Tyler Ulis op- week. tion (when Alex Poythress man-in-a-hurry search for another jump shot.

presents itself when the 15-Kansas (16-3) on Saturday.

LOUISVILLE: SI-WORTHY?

America are playing better embarrassment at Auburn playing better defense is jungle?

Heading to February, we "Tastes awful, but open could see unfold a Sports Illustrated-worthy story recruiting for next year.

When smoke starts to squealed, panicked, shot 40 clear next month and Brack-fered, Padgett at Louisville question: tion, the right media bursts would have been, in today's When's last time Kentucky from right mouths could recruit currency, a bordergot out of Fayetteville hav- launch Pitino to first Col- line 3-star prospect. Need ing committed seven turn-lege Coach of the Year a year's sabbatical to grow overs? Answer: When Tyler (while program is under up, returned to UK, earned boasted about 40-minutes- week, opportunity knocks Smothered! The Commo- to Duke and Notre Dame.

THE LABISSIERE Qs

for 32 per cent. Those num- and expert No. 1 draft pick coach at Samford U. in Birbers at Rupp Arena? Get projections for context, mingham.

more intrigue than solu-3. Derek Willis as a start- tions spun around Skal last Willis be Kentucky's next

First, an assessment from disappears). 'Calm Factor' an NBA official to Ken-Willis stretches defenses, tucky Sports Radio: "He's moves, screens, uses his starting to concern people. are still angry. feet on defense. And, he is a ... he has absolutely no feel balance to Jamal Murray's for basketball whatsoever."

Second, that John Calipari is recruiting over La-So, heading to February, bissiere. Marques Bolden Kentucky, has Tony Delk Kentucky is starting to Get It! is supposed to be headed to The Wildcats are not Kansas, but there's speculafront row yet alongside tion the 6-10 five-star cen-Oklahoma, North Caro- ter from DeSoto, Texas is lina, Iowa and Louisville, being woo-ed with visions but this weekend a giant- of Julius Randle one-sealeap-forward opportunity son at Kentucky on the way tions Kentucky fans will to big money.

Increasingly obvious, Lajumble shows signs of we (8-11) as a prep for trip to bissiere might be, could be, may be ready for a sopho-UK fans will see just more year. The intrigue becomes, with another parade of one-and-done prospects already headed to Lexington, will John Calipari in-Surging. Few teams in sist that Skal, a kid lost in weeds of college hoops be tucky east of the Rocky 1. An across-the-board than Louisville and those jettisoned into the NBA

WILLIS & SCOTT PADGETT

Latest visit to Parallel on focus-and-surge while World: Is Derek Willis the under NCAA Probe guns new Scott Padgett? Another Dakich, to a UK game eiand squirrely rumors about native son who's scholar- ther." coaching change to affect ship to Kentucky was more token than news bulletin.

When Rick Pitino ofetology returns to conversa- St. Xavier High School, For the Cardinals this for Tubby Smith.

Padgett owns an NCAA - Virginia and North Carotitle ring (1998). Had a cup Know when to shut up. Vandy? A word will do. lina at home, next road trips of coffee NBA career. Assistant coach at Kentucky one season.

Today, two months ahead With media adulation of 40th birthday, he is head

Can native son Derek Renaissance Man?

MALIK MONK

Hops fans in Arkansas

A look-in last week at Malik Monk in Bentonville, Arkansas tells us why. The 6-3, 185-pounder headed to shooting range, attack-thebasket skill of Isaiah Briscoe, and he dazzles best under brightest lights, thus Rupp Arena.

All showy stuff. Queswant answered: Can/will Monk play defense? Can/ will he share the ball with four other McDonalds All-Americans when the big lights come on?

WORTH REPEAT-ING DEPT.

Fan writes: "With Ken-Mountains, hopefully that means ESPN will never assign Bill Walton to a UK game. Dick Vitale is bad enough. Hopefully, ESPN will also never assign Bobby Knight Jr., a.k.a. Dan

COMMENT: Vitale is still spelled MUTE in my Walton? Seeing Washington-Utah game, alarming how argumentative and off the wall he was. Maybe he had a couple drinks (or a joint) before air time.

Dakich? Like others opportunity and bloomed who get face-time jobs in sports, started out well, but soon forgot the golden rule: And, like Jay Bilas, Dakich takes himself much too seriously.

And so it goes.

You can reach me at < bob. Watkins 24@aol. com.