seeds of Hope

People are like weather reports: they change frequently and are not always reliable. Over the years the prescription for predicting the weather has changed dramatically. Now, when weather persons make their reports it is usually in "percentages." They are always correct because they leave room for variations in their predictions as to what may or may not happen.

God is not that way. If He declares it, we can depend on it. "Trust in Him," said David. We have all trusted in family and friends only to be disappointed. Not that they intended to deceive us or disrupt our lives, it's just that they are as human as we are and have the potential as well as the probability to be wrong. "People are still people," Dean Edwards often said. "They are as human today as they were in Eden."

Our ability to trust, however, fluctuates. It seems to come and go depending on the situation. That's why he added "at all times." Our trust in God is to be constant and continual, not casual and conditional. Some of us have a fair-weather faith. If we do not get the answers we want when we want them we usually rely on our own strengths and strategies and the results are usually second best rather than God's best.

And we prove to Him that we trust in Him when we pour our hearts out to Him. It's like emptying a jar of water by turning it upside down and letting every drop fall to the ground. We must "let go and let God" have all of our wishes and wants, our sighs and sorrows.

Turn From Evil

1 Peter 3:8-13

⁸Finally, be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another, love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous: ⁹Not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing: but contrariwise blessing; knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should inherit a blessing. ¹⁰For he that will love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile: ¹¹Let him eschew evil, and do good; let him seek peace, and ensue it. ¹²For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil. ¹³And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?
