Maudie's Naughties

Bragging Rights

Four guys are drinking in a bar, bragging about their children. "My son," the first one says, "Started out washing cars at a dealership, but now owns the dealership and just gave one of his friends four new cars of her choice!" "My son," says the second, "Started out serving lunch in a real estate office, but now owns the real estate office and just gave one of his friends a new mansion!" "My son," says the third, "Started out sweeping the floors at the Stock Exchange, but now practically owns the Stock Exchange and just gave one of his friends a $1,000,000 in stock." "Well," the fourth guy says, "My daughter's turned out to be a bit of a disappointment. She works at a restaurant for minimum wage and tips, but she has SEVERAL boyfriends. On the plus side, between them, they gave her four cars, a mansion, and a million dollars in stock for her birthday."

Bank Guard

Lem: "I got fired from my job as a bank guard."
Clem: "That's awful. What happened?"
Lem: "Well a thief came in to rob the bank. I drew my gun. I told him that if he took one more step, I'd let him have it."
Clem: "What did the thief do then?"
Lem: "He took one more step . . . so I let him have it . . . I never liked guns much anyhow!"

The Checkup

A senior couple goes to the doctor for the husband's annual checkup. The husband is hard of hearing so when the doctor calls his name, He says, "What did he say?" to his wife. His wife says, "It's your turn" and the man goes in to be examined.

When the doctor finishes, they come out to the waiting room and the doctor explains to the wife that except for a slight hearing problem the man seems to be in good shape.

He then says to the man that he would now need a urine sample and a stool sample.

The man turns to his wife and says "What did he say?"
The wife says, "Give him your under shorts."

The Bagpiper

As a bagpiper, I play many gigs. Recently I was asked by a funeral director to play at a graveside service for a homeless man. He had no family or friends, so the service was to be at a pauper's cemetery in the Kentucky back-country.

As I was not familiar with the backwoods, I got lost; and being a typical man I didn't stop for directions. I finally arrived an hour late and saw the funeral guy had evidently gone and the hearse was nowhere in sight. There were only the diggers and crew left and they were eating lunch. I felt badly and apologized to the men for being late.

I went to the side of the grave and looked down and the vault lid was already in place. I didn't know what else to do, so I started to play. The workers put down their lunches and began to gather around. I played out my heart and soul for this man with no family and friends. I played like I've never played before for this homeless man. And as I played 'Amazing Grace,' the workers began to weep. They wept, I wept, we all wept together. When I finished I packed up my bagpipes and started for my car. Though my head hung low, my heart was full.

As I was opening the door to my car, I heard one of the workers say, "I never seen nothin' like that before and I've been putting in septic tanks for twenty years."

Call Home

A woman is in bed with her husband's best friend when the phone rings. She answers the phone while he quietly listens to one side of the conversation.

"Hello? Oh, hi. I'm so glad that you called. Really? That's wonderful. I am so happy for you. That sounds terrific. Great! Thanks. Okay. Bye bye."

She hangs up the telephone, and he asks, "Who was that?"
"Oh," she replies, "That was my husband telling me all about the wonderful time he's having on his fishing trip with you."

The Therapist

A noted therapist realizes that people often lie about the frequency of their romantic encounters. So he devises a test to tell for certain by looking at a person's smile.

To prove his theory, he fills up an auditorium with people, and goes down the line, asking each person to smile. Using the size of the person's smile, the therapist is able to guess accurately until he comes to the last man in line, an elderly gentleman, who is grinning from ear to ear.

"Twice a day," the therapist guesses, but is surprised when the man says no. "Once a day, then?" Again the answer is no.

"Twice a week?" "No." "Twice a month?" "No." The man finally says yes when the doctor gets to "once a year."

The therapist is angry that his theory isn't working, and asks the elderly gentleman, "Then, what the heck are you so happy about?"

The gent answers, "Tonight's the night!"

South Irvine School 1960-61 Seventh and Eighth Grades

Florene Tuggle of South Carolina sent in this picture last week of the 1960-61 7th & 8th grade classes at South Irvine Elementary. It came from her sister, Lorene Dean's things. We asked if anyone could identify them. Kathleen Puckett of Winchester Road recognized the group as one pictured with students identified in the Estill County Historical Society's book, "Schools of Estill County."
