IPD executes search warrant and arrests the residents for manufacturing & selling meth

The Montgomery warrant says that Brezeale had been found guilty there of two counts of theft by deception - including cold checks.

Judge D. Blair set Brezeale's bond at $600 cash, which will be applied to restitution.

The bench warrant was issued because it says that Brezeale had filed to appear or pay restitution on the checks.

Brzezinski is also known as Sasha Summerfield and is a former Richmond resident.

Chief Smith served a bench warrant on her in the name of Summerfield from Jessamine County Circuit Court. Judge H. Daugherty says that Summerfield failed to appear in court. The charge is not given. That judge set her bail at $16,000 cash.

A parole violation warrant from the Kentucky Department of Probation and Parole was also served on Summerfield under the name of Brzezinski. It says she has absconded her parole supervision and failed to complete treatment for substance abuse.

Chief Smith said that because Brzezinski had the warrant from probation and parole, probation and parole officers assisted with executing the search warrant.

Also assisting the Irvine Police Department was Mike Gross with Ravenna PD.

Brzezinski and Brezeale were arraigned on their charges in Estill District Court. They each pleaded not guilty to the charges against them.

Judge William Leach scheduled Brzezinski to return to district court on August 17 for a preliminary hearing. That hearing will determine if there is enough evidence to send the case on to the grand jury.

Brezeale waived his right to a preliminary hearing. He asked the case against him be waived to the grand jury.

Bail for Brzezinski on the Estill charges is $25,000 cash. Brezeale's bail is $10,000 cash.

Two women are arrested following an altercation in the hallway while District Court is in session

Two women face charges after they allegedly caused a disruption in the hallway outside the Estill District Court room last Wednesday.

Deputy Russell "Doc" Morris said a video showed Heather McIntosh, 40, of White Pine Lane, Ravenna in the hallway approaching Chelsie McMillian, 27, of Winchester.

The citation states that McIntosh was arguing with McMillian in the upstairs hallway while district court was going on.

Irvine Officer John Sturniolo said McMillian was yelling and using profane language in the hallway while court proceedings were going on.

The officer said McMillian was trying to engage another female also. He said he tried to pull the two females apart. He added that McMillian kept fighting and resisting arrest.

Sturniolo charged her with menacing, disorderly conduct, and resisting arrest.

Morris charged McIntosh with menacing and disorderly conduct.

VA Spends Big for Artwork

VETERANS POST
by Freddy Groves

Consider this: $1.2 million for a sculpture. That's how much the Department of Veterans Affairs has paid to put a chunk of rock in the courtyard of the Palo Alto Mental Health Center.

In the name of disclosure, it was actually $482,960 for the rock itself and $807,310 for groundwork around it. Granted, the rock was cut into squares and fitted back together, but still ... The tally for artwork spending at Palo Alto tops $6 million at this point.

OpenTheBooks.com has investigated and determined how much the VA is spending on artwork.

Example: Quotations by Eleanor Roosevelt and Abe Lincoln, in Morse code, attached to the side of the parking deck. But hey, it lights up. Cost: $280,000.

Example: The new outpatient clinic in Anchorage snagged a glass sculpture for a mere $100,000.

It appears that one Florida company has raked in over $11 million over the years in various government contracts. One contract for artwork ($55,000) was categorized as Miscellaneous Furniture and Fixtures.

Then there's the company in New Jersey with a $3.75 million VA contract to provide a wide variety of items, including still cameras, fittings for ropes and cables ... and fur materials.

According to the OpenTheBooks.com website, the artwork numbers are crawling up each year. A mere $34,000 was spent in 2004. By 2010 it was up to $1.7 million. In 2014 the expenditures had shot up to $3.1 million. In 10 years, the tally comes to nearly $20 million for artwork.

A show of hands: Which would you rather have, a timely appointment with decent care ... or a fancy chunk of rock outside the front door and glass doodads hanging in the lobby?

And where were the veterans who are artists? Surely there's untapped talent out there that could provide artwork for the VA facilities without running into the millions of dollars.

The 136-day Kentucky archery deer season kicks off Saturday, Sept. 3. The season looks similar to the past several in which Kentucky deer hunters racked up a string of record harvests. Hunters in the state harvested more than 155,000 deer last season, establishing a new record. This number included 55 male deer that met the minimum score for entry into the Boone and Crockett Club's awards book.

Kentucky Afield Outdoors: deer season looks promising

Many archery hunters in Kentucky will spend the last long weekend of summer getting an early jump on fall.

Kentucky's 2016-17 deer season kicks off the first Saturday in September with the start of the 136-day archery season. Anticipation has been building for months.

"Everything right now points toward another good season," said Gabe Jenkins, deer program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

That is welcome news following a string of record harvests.

Hunters in Kentucky established a new benchmark last season by taking more than 155,000 deer. It was the third record harvest in the past four seasons and included 55 bucks from 40 counties documented by Kentucky Fish and Wildlife that met the Boone and Crockett Club's minimum entry score for its awards book.

"Our deer hunting in Kentucky is better than it's ever been," said Steve Beam, wildlife division director for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "We're harvesting record numbers of deer and our production of large-antlered bucks is completely incredible."

A state believed to hold fewer than 1,000 white-tailed deer a century ago now is considered one of the nation's premier hunting destinations. The latest herd estimate - derived from harvest and age structure data - pegged the statewide population at more than 820,000 after the 2015-16 hunting season and before fawning this spring.

"We've really hit the scene in the past 10 years because of our quality white-tail," Jenkins said. "That's a product of good management, good habitat and being diligent about what's being put on the landscape. With that, we still have to be good stewards."

The archery season is just one facet. Crossbow, muzzleloader and youth deer hunting opportunities are part of the overall season framework. But it is the modern gun deer season in November that drives the harvest, accounting for 70 percent of the total harvest last season.

"We've been setting archery records nearly every year and every month, so we're seeing more interest in archery hunting," Jenkins said. "But we're still a modern gun-dominated state and weather is the biggest key in that."
